GERMAN GOVERNMENT MAY RESIGN

REFUSE TO CRIPPLE DEFENSE TO OBTAIN HELP FINANCIALLY

Fear French Demand Impossible; Luther Leaves Paris

BERLIN, July 11.—Both President Von Hindenburg and the German cabinet will resign rather than cripple Germany's present national defense, in order to obtain an international loan, government spokesmen intimated to International News Service today.

Since Dr. Luther's departure for London and Paris on his urgent mission to raise funds to bolster the Reich's crumbling financial structure, Chancellor Bruening's cabinet has been in almost continuous session.

The chancellor has been having long-distance telephone talks with President Von Hindenburg for hours at a time since the crisis began to show signs of coming to a head.

Government spokesmen pointed out that the aged soldier-president considers France's demand that Germany suspend her "vest-pocket cruiser" program as a personal humiliation. The president is at his summer home in East Prussia.

Germans are generally indignant at this suggestion, declaring that one or two small cruisers offer no threat whatever to the big navies of France and England.

If Chancellor Bruening should resign it would mean probably that the next government would be in control of Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, leader of the nationalists and Adolf Hitler, leader of the national socialists (Fascists). These two fighting Germans recently combined with the powerful Stahlhelm organization in a "national opposition" to the present cabinet's policies.

Government circles point out that the former allies would hardly prefer to deal with a cabinet formed by these elements in preference to the present one.

Although the German cabinet learned by telephone from Paris,

PRESIDENT BLAMES GRAIN GAMBLERS FOR MARKET DEPRESSION

HEIGH-HO!

Here is a new photo of Mrs. Rudy Vallee, bride of Broadway's famous megaphone man. She was formerly a musical comedy actress and played small parts in a number of cinema productions, which, incidentally, is how she met Rudy—when he made his motion picture. Mrs. Rudy is 23.

FOURTH SUSPECT IS ARRESTED IN PROBE OF AUTO THEFT RING

Salesman Is Latest Caught; Continue Investigation

CANTON, O., July 11.—With the arrest of a fourth Canton man as a suspect in connection with an alleged gigantic four-state automobile theft ring that is believed to have stolen more than $1,000,000 worth of new cars, federal agents today were understood to be extending their investigation to other cities.

William Johnson, an automobile salesman, was taken into custody late yesterday by A. E. Bailey, Detroit agent of the U. S. department of justice. The arrest was made at the office of Fabor Druckenbrod, attorney for Johnson.

Arrested before U. S. Commissioner Charles M. Ball, Johnson was freed on a plea of not guilty and was freed on $2,500 bond. He was charged with conspiracy to violate the Dyer act.

Johnson will be given a hearing along with the three other Canton business men arrested in connection with the case, on July 20, before Commissioner Ball.

The three other suspects are Harley L. Myers, owner of garages in Canton and North Canton; Wayne E. Carpenter, secretary-treasurer of the United Acceptance Corporation, and Thomas McVey, automobile drive contractor. They pleaded not guilty at arraignments yesterday and were admitted to $2,500 bond each.

Bailey, who was in charge of the investigation in Canton, working in cooperation with Canton police, left yesterday for Detroit to obtain a list of stolen automobiles distributed in Ohio, it was said.

Further investigation was expected to extend to Cleveland, Akron, Lima, Toledo, Warren and other northern and central Ohio cities. Probes similar to the one carried on in Canton are now in progress in Detroit, said to be headquarters for the alleged auto robber band, and Chicago, which was believed to have been another important city in the ring's operations.

SEARCH SPREADS FOR BANK ROBBERS

MARION, O., July 11.—Search was spread throughout northern Ohio today for two youthful bank robbers who raided the Morral Bank at Morral, near here, and escaped with approximately $2,500 yesterday.

The bandits fled in a blue roadster, authorities were told. Conflicting reports were given, however, as to the direction in which the automobile left town. It was believed, however, that the robbers headed northwest, apparently intent upon escaping into either Indiana or Michigan.

The holdup occurred while J. H. Bardon, 60-year-old cashier was in the bank alone. Flourishing a revolver, one of the bandits forced the cashier to lie on the floor while his accomplice scooped up all available money in sight.

FORMER OFFICER IS SLAIN; MAN HELD

JACKSON, O., July 11.—Charles Patrick, 35, was held in jail here today on charges of murder in connection with the slaying of James Gilliland, 35, former marshal of Oakhill, yesterday.

Gilliland was shot and killed by a man who accosted him as he was sitting in front of a filling station, police said.

Authorities recalled that Patrick was arrested by Gilliland about a year ago and that he suffered a broken jaw in attempting to resist the officer.

It had been announced here today, following Dr. Skinner's selection as state director of education. Dr. Boyd was promoted to vice president.

LAST BOATMAN DIES

Scores Speculators For Short-Selling To Depress Prices

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Deeply disturbed over the continued decline in commodity prices, particularly wheat, which has reached the lowest levels in thirty-five years, President Hoover contemplated the situation in his Rapidan fishing camp today, and considered drastic action to curb what he characterized as "unpatriotic" speculation.

With obvious anger, Mr. Hoover denounced "grain gamblers" just before leaving for his camp, and declared that were it not for the law imposing confidence in such matters he would gladly make public the names of those who are selling wheat short. Such selling, he asserted, has but one purpose, "and that is to depress prices."

"It tends to destroy returning public confidence," he said.

It had been hoped by the President and administration officials generally that the effect of his war debt moratorium plan would be to stabilize and improve the markets in this country, indeed, it did have such an effect for two weeks. The great commodity markets, wheat, cotton, metal, as well as stocks and bonds, turned definitely upward after months of sluggish downward tendencies.

But as France hedged and traded in the matter of accepting the President's proposal, and the seriousness of Germany's condition began to be more apparent, reaction set in, with the result that virtually all of the gains have now been lost—and more. Wheat, for example, sold on the grain exchanges yesterday at lower prices than before Mr. Hoover made his move.

It has been very disappointing to the administration.

Under the circumstances, the administration is inclined to blame the speculators.

Rarely has the White House issued such an indictment against market traders as the President pronounced just before leaving for his camp.

"It has come to my knowledge," he said, "that certain persons are selling short in our commodity markets, particularly in wheat; these transactions have been continuous over the past month. I do not refer to the ordinary hedging transactions, which are a sound part of our marketing system. I do not refer to the legitimate grain trade. I refer to a limited number of speculators. I am not expressing any views upon economics of short-selling in normal times."

"But in these times this activity

PAPER MAKER DIES FROM HEART ATTACK

CINCINNATI, O., July 11.—Industrial circles throughout Ohio were stunned today over the death of Peter G. Thomson, president of the Champion Coated Paper Co., Hamilton, O., and widely-known manufacturer, of a heart attack at Christ Hospital last night.

Thomson had been confined at the hospital for several weeks, and had been believed, however, that he was on the road to recovery and that he would be released from the hospital next week.

Thomson began his career as a book clerk. He organized the Champion Coated Paper Co. in 1922.

Funeral services for the manufacturer will be held on Monday, according to arrangements planned today.

PROFESSOR'S SON KILLED IN CRASH

SAULTE STE. MARIE, Mich., July 11.—Robert L. Green, Jr., 10, the son of Professor Robert Green, of Notre Dame University, South Bend, Ind., was dead today as the result of injuries which he sustained when the car in which he was riding skidded and overturned on a road near here.

FIND BOY'S SKELETON IN SCHOOL

Tentatively identified as that of Perlie Quelsby, missing since Dec. 15, 1922, the skeleton of a youth found in the air shaft of Central high school at Muncie, Ind., still mystified police. An open jack-knife was found clutched in the boy's hand. Photos show Zora Cleveland, Otto Armstrong and Francis Cleveland, three plumbers who found the bones, indicated by the "x" at the bottom of the shaft, shown in lower photo.

HIKES IN VAIN

COLUMBUS, O., July 11.—A bent and stooped Cincinnati man who hitchhiked here, despite his 77 years, today found that his tedious and tiresome trip had been in vain.

John Martin Summer, former Cincinnati florist, came here to find his son, who recently sent for him, he told police. City directories and other sources of information failed to reveal the address of his son, John M. Summer, Jr., 44.

The aged man hiked nearly all the way from Cincinnati, going without food most of the way because he was robbed of a few dollars in his possession soon after he started, he said.

TWO SUSPECTS HELD BY POLICE PROBING DOUBLE DEATH CASE

Quarry Keeper And Brother Quizzed Again In Case

LIMA, O., July 11.—In desperate search of a tangible clue in the Memorial Day murder of Earl Truesdale, 20, and his girl companion, Thelma Woods, 17, police today re-questioned Elmer Hubbard, 33, caretaker at the quarry where the bodies were found.

Hubbard and his brother, Fred Hubbard, were arrested last night for questioning, but police refused to divulge what they were to be asked. The caretaker was first arrested immediately after the discovery of the bodies, but was released after being held four days.

With the beginning of the re-questioning of Hubbard, police indicated that they were about convinced that James May, the 22-year-old former suitor of Miss Woods who was recently re-arrested, was innocent of the crime, and that he would be released.

Although detectives refused to comment on the arrest of Elmer Hubbard and his brother, followers of the case recalled that it was he who found Truesdale's abandoned car after the murder. He also was found to be in possession of a blanket, identified as Truesdale's property, which he said he found in the quarry.

In their plan to go over all the possible clues once more, police again studied a stained hammer found in Truesdale's car which they believed might have been the murder instrument. After an examination of the hammer several weeks ago, police said the stains probably were rust, instead of blood, as was first thought.

TREASURY BALANCE

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Treasury balance as of July 9, $394,446,252.40; expenditures, $15,732,790.58; customs receipts, $17,777,256.20.

BOYS CRUSHED FATALLY IN SANDPILE CAVE-IN

POSTORIA, O., July 11.—Victims of a sandpile cave-in while they were playing, 10-year-old Warren James Sherman and Malcolm Kelley, 11, sons of prominent Postoria business men, were dead here today.

The bodies of the children were found late yesterday under two and one-half feet of sand near the Electric Auto

Lite foundry here. The boys had been buried alive.

Lung motors were used in an effort to resuscitate the children, but they failed.

Search for the boys started when they failed to return home for lunch yesterday noon. Discovery of the Sherman boy's pony tethered near the sandpile led to a search of the 10-foot cave-in for the boys.

THREE MORE CANDIDATES FILE FOR COMMISSION; SEVEN ENTER

Three more candidates for City Commission have qualified by filing their nominating petitions with the board of election, swelling the field to seven candidates and making certain that a primary election will be held in Xenia August 11.

The latest entrants in the race for two prospective vacancies on the commission are Arthur Whalen, 223 Cincinnati Ave., Pennsylvania Railroad employee; Lawrence E. John, 848 N. Galloway St., and Elmer Owens, Jr.

Whalen was a member of the first City Commission of Xenia when the commission-manager form of government was established here in 1918, and he also served as mayor of the city, although having no judicial powers.

John, a prominent local business man, is proprietor of a billiard parlor at 49 E. Main St., and Owens is in the grocery business on W. Main St.

The time for filing declarations of candidacy for commission expires at 6:30 o'clock Saturday night, and it is believed the field of candidates will not be increased beyond its present size.

Providing this belief is correct, election board officials point out that three of the seven candidates will be eliminated at the August primary and that the four receiving the most votes will be eligible to have their names appear again on the ballots at the regular November election.

The other four candidates who previously filed are Commissioners I. S. Dines and Jacob Kany, whose terms expire this year, Fred W. Sanger, E. Main St., butcher, and John Brannen, Home Ave., factory foreman.

None of the candidates, it is said, is being brought out under the banner of the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association. A member of the committee of local business men appointed some time ago by the association to bring out one or

PROPOSED TAX BILL TO STAND

Becomes Law Without White's Approval

COLUMBUS, O., July 11.—The delinquent tax bill, permitting the installment plan payment of taxes, will become a law without Governor George White's signature, announced today.

Whether the governor was in accord with all the details of the bill could not be learned. The announcement that the governor would neither sign nor veto the bill was made without comment.

Drafted under supervision of the legislature's special taxation committee, the bill reduces from five to three years the time limit for foreclosures on property on which taxes are delinquent, and allows county auditors and treasurers to remove from their books tax delinquencies which cover a period of at least five years providing authorities are convinced that collections cannot be made.

The bill also provides for the payment of delinquent taxes in five installments at regular tax-paying time.

Crouse also announced that the governor will permit the Marshall bill, providing for the issuance of certificates of title to automobile owners, to become law without his signature.

RUDY'S MARRIAGE WAS LEGAL

Fay Took Airplane To Reach Jersey In Time So Vallee Answers Old Meanie

NEW YORK, July 11.—Rudy Vallee today gave vent to a low contemptuous laugh followed by a tut, tut and a couple of pppp-pools when asked if there could be any truth in a rumor intimating he isn't legally married to the charming Fay Webb after all. The rumor is "silly," says Rudy.

Just to prove that the rumor is without foundation, the megaphone crooner let out a little secret. It was this: Fay flew to his arms—literally. She took an airplane.

Before Rudy brought the airplane into the colorful romance a question had arisen as to whether he and his bride had conformed with the laws of New Jersey, where, in West Orange, they were secretly married Monday.

Some person with a mathematical mind started figuring and reached the conclusion the marriage may not have been according to Hoyle. Fay left home from their book-tax delinquencies, which cover a period of at least five years providing authorities are convinced that collections cannot be made.

Crouse also announced that the governor will permit the Marshall bill, providing for the issuance of certificates of title to automobile owners, to become law without his signature.

DEFENSE PLEA OF ILL HEALTH DISREGARDED

Former Officer Of Cabinet Must Pay For Frauds

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, central figure in the celebrated "oil scandals" of the Harding administration, today was ordered to jail for his part in the leasing of naval oil reserve land.

Sentence was ordered by Justice Jennings Bailey of the District of Columbia supreme court, despite the claim of Fall's attorneys that he is in serious physical condition.

In announcing the decision, Justice Bailey said that if counsel for the aged ex-cabinet officer would move to amend the sentence to a year and a day the court would consider such a move. This the court thought, would enable the department of justice to order Fall's confinement in "a more salubrious" climate than is afforded in the District of Columbia jail.

Fall's original sentence was for one year. Sentences of this length are served in jails, rather than penitentiaries. By extending the sentence for one day, the court was of the opinion that the department of justice would then have power to send Fall where his health would be safeguarded.

Frank J. Hogan, counsel for Fall, asked for a day to consider the court's suggestion.

"I cannot see that there is any material change in Fall's condition since the previous trial," said the court, "and what I gather from the report of physicians is that it is not the danger of confinement but the danger of imprisonment in a humid climate such as that of Washington. This is not a case where the defendant is suffering from some illness such as typhoid fever from which he might recover soon. Any suspension in this case would be a prototypical suspension of the sentence ordered by the court."

Fall who was convicted of accepting a $100,000 bribe from E. L. Doheny, oil magnate, for granting leases in the Elk Hills naval oil reserve, California, to the Doheny interests, was fined $100,000 in addition to the sentence.

He was convicted two years ago, but final action on his case was delayed by unsuccessful appeals to the District of Columbia court of appeals and to the U. S. supreme court.

With Hogan declaring that prison would end his life, an examination by army physicians at Fort William Beaumont, El Paso, Texas, was ordered late in June.

The physicians diagnosed Fall's illness as hardening of the arteries, degeneration of the heart muscles, pleurisy, arthritis and inactive pulmonary tuberculosis.

When Atlee Pomerene, special government counsel in the "oil scandal" cases, appeared before Justice Bailey two days ago, he suggested that Fall be confined in jail at El Paso. This suggestion was made because physicians would become active if moved to the humid climate of Washington.

While army physicians made no prediction as to whether Fall could withstand confinement in jail, Hogan presented a report by three Washington physicians, based on the diagnosis. The physicians comprised a board named by the court to examine Fall during his trial two years ago.

All agreed that imprisonment of the 70-year-old ex-cabinet officer might shorten his life, and aggravate his illness.

CANDLER OFF FOR SAVANNAH

UNITED AIRPORT, BURBANK, Cal., July 11.—Asa Candler, Jr., member of the millionaire beverage family of Atlanta, Ga., accompanied by Mrs. Candler and pilot by Beeler Blevins, took off on an attempted record-breaking transcontinental flight at 5:09 a. m. today, Pacific Standard Time.

Despite the murky weather at the airport, the great cream-colored superspeedster, carrying 222 gallons of gasoline and forty of oil, roared down the runway as soon as ignition trouble, which had prevented the takeoff at 3 a. m., was originally planned, had been repaired and the motor warmed up.

The itinerary calls for stops at Big Springs, Texas, for lunch and fuel, and the final stop at Savannah in time for dinner tonight.

Lindy as Dog-Loving Boy

Turning the pages of the Lindbergh family album, one is sure to stop and give this entertaining photo a second glance. Charles Augustus Lindbergh, famous flier, probably had no thoughts of the renown which was to come to him in later years when this picture was snapped in 1912. "Lindy" and his pet dog hardly fill the old-fashioned chair. This is one of the pictures appearing in the authorized biography of the Lindberghs appearing in McCall's Magazine.

Too Bad, Girls, He's Gone

Many a sigh has escaped many a feminine heart since the news was flashed around that Rudy Vallee, crooner extraordinary, has gone and gotten married to just one little dark-haired girl when practically the entire girl world had designs on him. Here's the girl, gals, what did you dirt! She's the former Fay Webb, once of the films and with a father as chief of police of Santa Monica, Calif. And we're also sending along a picture of Rudy himself for your albums. Of course, we can't do anything about it if you tear 'em apart—on paper.

Pledged Support

Announcement by Dr. Hans Luther (above), president of the Reichsbank, Berlin, that 1,000 German banks and industrial concerns had agreed to deposit with the Gold Discount Bank, a subsidiary of the Reichsbank, a total of 500,000,000 marks (about $119,000,000) was expected to quiet the nervousness of outside creditors of German industries. The pledged fund guarantees repayment of commercial loans and therefore is of vast importance to creditors outside Germany.

Looks Can Deceive

The fact that appearances are deceiving proved Jacob Achenbach almost two million dollars. When the 87-year-old president of the Beaver, Meade and Englewood Railroad of Oklahoma went to the Katy Railroad offices in St. Louis four years ago to sell his 105-mile line for $600,000, clerks wouldn't let him see the president of the larger road because of his unkempt appearance. Still totally unchanged, Achenbach is shown with a $2,300,000 check from the president of the Katy Railroad. In four years the price of his property went up almost four times.

Look Different—Act Alike

To settle once and for all a long-fought argument as to the comparative climbing abilities of the orthodox plane and the revolutionary autogyro, a novel test was held recently at Roosevelt Field, N. Y. The autogyro in the foreground, piloted by Andy J. Nielsen, and the Bird plane, piloted by William Marsalis, are shown taking off at the exact same angle after runs of equal distances. They were given a tied score by the judges. That ought to satisfy backers of both craft.

Back home again in New York, Captain Frank Hawks, premier speed flier of the world, points out the places on the map where he "burned up" Europe with his mystery plane, a model of which he holds in his hand. Setting new speed marks wherever he flew in Europe, Hawks is shown explaining how he accomplished his sensational feats to J. H. Lapham, official of the Texas company, of which Captain Hawks is aeronautical adviser.

There have been singing chefs and songsters in the bathtub, but here's a dishwasher beset with a harmony complex. Jack Beauvais, 21, of Hyde Park, Mass., a dishwasher in a Cambridge five-and-ten store restaurant, is said to be on the brink of a remarkable career in song. Hailed by critics as the youth with the "million-dollar" voice, Jack (above) is making his debut in radio.

The county has a population of 195 and has an area of 765 square miles.

WILL CASE VERDICT REACHES HIGH COURT

Appeal was filed Friday in the Ohio Supreme Court by George D. Oglesbee from the decree of the Greene County appellate court favoring Attorney W. L. Miller, as executor of the estate of the late Martha Seifer Oglesbee, wife of the plaintiff.

The suit involves the will of the late Mrs. Oglesbee. The lower courts granted the application of Attorney Miller for an order divesting Oglesbee of property rights under terms of the will, on the ground that he failed to comply with certain requirements embodied in the will.

Motion to dismiss the appeal in the case was sustained by the second district Court of Appeals last May 26 on the ground the action seeking to declare forfeit Oglesbee's life estate, is not appealable.

Poems that Live

NO AND YES
If I could choose my paradise,
And please myself with choice of bliss,
Then I would have your soft blue eyes
And rosy little mouth to kiss!
Your lips, as smooth and tender, child,
As rose-leaves in a coppice wild.

If fate bade choose some sweet unrest,
To weave my troubled life a snare,
Then I would say "her maiden breast
And golden ripple of her hair";
And weep amid these tresses, child,
Contented to be thus beguiled.

—Thomas Ashe (1826-1889)

Patterson Field is the new name decided upon by the war department for Fairfield Air Depot reservation, located at Fairfield and including 3,802.76 acres, according to an announcement Friday by army air corps officials at the depot.

The new name will commemorate Lieut. Frank Stuart Patterson, who was killed in a plane crash at Wright Field, June 19, 1918.

HEALTH OFFICER AT CAPITAL GIVES SIX HOT WEATHER RULES

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Psychology has a lot to do with heat suffering in the opinion of Dr. William C. Fowler, District Health Officer, who today issued six rules on how to best hold up during hot weather. He said:

"There are hundreds of persons who suffer from the heat mainly because they make themselves suffer. By this I mean it is more mental than physical with them. You will find these persons go up to a thermometer, see the temperature is up to a high point and immediately they will begin to worry. If persons would avoid looking at thermometers and talking about the hot weather they would be a whole lot better off."

The general rule laid down by Dr. Fowler during hot spells is:

Avoid all excesses. This includes excess in eating, recreation and exercise.

His six rules for hot weather are:

1. Watch your diet. Don't eat heavy food. Eat light, nourishing foods and be certain your diet contains plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables.
2. Avoid exposing yourself to the direct rays of the sun as much as possible. During the heat of the day, find yourself a shady place and stay there.
3. Get all the rest and sleep you possibly can.
4. Take frequent sponge baths—or, if your system can stand it—shower baths, but don't overdo this.
5. Drink plenty of cool water but avoid drinking ice cold water.
6. Wear light clothing.

The popular fad of going away to a beach and lying in the sun on the sand to obtain a nice berry tan does not meet with the approval of the District Health Officer. He thinks this is "all wet" and that persons should stay out of the sun as much as possible.

TOWN HAS NO SPEAKEASIES

BEAVER, Pa.—The "influence of the church" is given credit for absence of even so much as a single speakeasy in this town by Dr. Lewis L. Uring, president of the council. He advised other municipalities to check up on their moral conditions which he said were entirely dependent on the power of the church in the community.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him.—John, II, 4.

STOCK PROMOTERS PURSUED

The federal government is starting a drive against firms that sell securities of little or no value. Robbing poor folks of their life savings is the worst kind of business, says the attorney general. It does seem strange that there are people mean enough to urge persons of small means to buy hazardous securities that they ought not to look at.

Millions of people will buy any stock that issues a handsomely engraved certificate and which is represented by an eloquent stock salesman with perfectly creased trousers.

The government does well to try to protect these innocents, who are like babes in the woods when they get out among the financial wolves.

THE OLD CONSTITUTION

The ancient United States frigate Constitution, most famous warship of the American navy, has been restored with its former equipment of sails and rigging, and is to be exhibited at various ports this summer. It may sail part of the way on this trip with its own canvass. This noted ship, famed as "Old Ironsides," has figured in song and story and history, and every schoolboy has read of its fame.

It defended the rights of America in a day when our people were but a little nation. American power was then looked at with contempt, but the amazing fighting ability of the men who manned this old frigate taught them a few lessons. Today it is not necessary to impress the old world with our fighting power. They know what that is all right. We need to impress them today with our power for humanitarian leadership. However we can well look with admiration on this old warship as the protest of a struggling nation against tyranny.

WHY DO IT?

The spectacle of a professional stool-pigeon in New York being provided with a police bodyguard because of fear that he might be "put on the spot" by some of those whose secrets he possessed, including, it is said, some members of the police department, might be dismissed casually, as one of the oddities of the day's news, were it not that it reveals so strikingly one of the conditions which help to make the administration of justice additionally difficult in this country.

Little sympathy need be wasted on a professional informer, however valuable his services may prove to those who give him employment. But the story does not stop there. Intimidating material and reputable witnesses, until they develop a convenient memory which forgets facts readily, if they can be induced to appear in the picture at all, is one of the favorite and particularly effective means that gangland utilizes in insuring immunity from punishment. The practice is by no means confined to New York. It is to be found wherever racketeering rears its head, and that is not confined to the illicit liquor traffic.

Getting a conviction is difficult enough under the most favorable circumstances. Unfortunately, the general inclination seems to be to let someone else have his day in court as a witness, or in other capacities, rather than undergo the inconvenience such service imposes. Add to this the ease, and the frequency with which it is possible to sway, either through fear of bodily harm, or for a monetary consideration, those whose testimony would prove invaluable in securing a conviction, and the agencies charged with law enforcement, however conscientious and upstanding they may be, are given a handicap which places this nation in an unenviable light, not only in its own eyes, but in the eyes of the world at large.

Other Editorial Thoughts

THE OTHER SIDE

Critics of the federal farm board never admit that anything it does is right. That would weaken their stand. One might imagine, however, that the farm board would enlist considerable support, say in Kansas, the wheat state. True, it hasn't raised the price of wheat any, but it probably has helped keep it from dropping out of sight. At least, whatever good effects it eventually may have will be widely operative in Kansas.

How does Kansas feel about it? More specifically, how do the thousands of Kansas farmers who make a living selling wheat feel about it? Last summer when the farm board asked for reduced wheat acreage in order to avoid creating a surplus, a spokesman for the Kansas wheat farmers said they endorsed the acreage reduction proposal because, if other states adopted it, Kansas could increase its acreage and reap what benefits were to be had. Of course there was no reduction and Kansas reaped no special benefits.

Another characteristic Kansas gesture is now available for comment. The Kansas state tax commission has ruled that more than 20,000,000 bushels of Stabilization Corp. wheat stored in Kansas elevators is subject to taxation by the state and its subdivisions. The levy is estimated at a half million dollars.

This may be sound tax theory, but it's doubtful fact. The wheat can't be hidden and it can't very well be removed from the state. Furthermore the taxpayer is the same gentleman who appropriated millions of dollars to buy the wheat in an effort to help Kansas wheat farmers—jolly old Uncle Sam. It's made-to-order situation for the tax commission.

Ohio farmers, and farmers in every state where wheat is not the "big crop," may be excused for not showing enthusiasm or even respectful interest in the federal government's attempts to build up the morale of farmers in the Sunflower state, if Kansas farmers permit such a tax to be levied. The idea of farm relief is fine, but if the people to be relieved want to bite the hand extended at great expense to help them it's just another fine idea gone wrong.—Portsmouth Times.

MY NEW YORK

BY JAMES ARWELL

NEW YORK.—The literary tea-bounds never filled me with a desire to buckle on my rollerskates and join their rounds.

Literary teas in New York are held for every purpose except the one which alone makes a party fun—simple sociability. The celebrities who attend them have a tired look in their eyes; they are working—promoting themselves and the sale of their books. They have lost the gloss of their amateur standing as tea-drinkers, and they regain none of it even when they drink other things than tea.

Still, there is one group in town which is worth joining once in a while. This is the Wednesday Culture club, which meets on Friday in a bell-push restaurant off Park Ave. The treat is Dutch.

A strange assortment of writers, publishers and agents gather about the long table. High-hat intellectuals who feed the Nation, the New Republic, the Atlantic and the Yale Review; lowly plutocrats who fictioneer for the Saturday Evening Post and Colliers, their Isotta-Fraschini parked a block away.

I have seen, over a single serving of antipasto, Albert Payson Terhune, thick-necked, sturdy as a logger; Abbe Dimmet, of "The Art of Thinking" renown, thin-nosed, asetic-eyed; Clarence Darrow, griseled, passionately opinionated; John Farrar, volatile, red-headed, quick-witted; Lawrence Stallings, handsome despite his war wounds and Frank Buck, the animal trapper, whose "Bring 'em Back Alive," rocketed him to fame and royalties. George Bye, the literary agent, is the stage-manager for these gatherings.

PORTRAIT OF AN AUTHOR

You'd hate to meet him on a dark night. He has the longest, meanest mustachios, which, if placed end to end, would undoubtedly strangle him. He knows how to scowl. He is half gypsy. He hates royalty and wealth.

He is wealthy himself. When in New York he favors the very snooty Algonquin. Sidewalk urinals fill him with choked compassion. His latest book is titled, "That Royal Lover"—and is about Queen Marie of Roumania. He leans toward colorful travel stories, whimsical romance.

His name is Konrad Bercovici.

CHECK AND DOUBLE CHECK

SOLON VERSED IN MINING OFFERS CLEAR ANALYSIS OF COAL REGION CRISIS

(The first of a series of special articles analyzing the critical bituminous coal situation, concerning which the federal government has called a conference.)

FAIRMONT, W. Va.—To bring order out of chaos in the bituminous coal industry is at least as difficult a job to undertake as the task of transforming a general state of business depression, such as the one the country has been experiencing for more than the last two years and a half, into an era of prosperity, says Senator M. M. Neely of West Virginia.

Senator Neely is not ordinarily a pessimist, either, but one of the ablest and most progressive and resourceful public men in the country—lost to Washington since 1928, among other Democratic casualties incidental to the Al Smith debacle, but triumphantly re-elected in 1930, and due to resume his former seat in the national capitol when congress meets next winter.

Nevertheless, he shakes his head over the bituminous coal situation. It is easy enough, he observes, "to see what is the matter—too much coal and too many miners to dig it. But how to mend matters? That's a well-nigh if not quite unanswerable problem."

The industry's troubles really date (though they were not acutely felt at first) from the opening up of soft coal production on a large scale in West Virginia.

Pennsylvania's soft coal was selling at the time the early 1900's at satisfactory prices, but West Virginia's competition quickly began to affect these prices adversely. Naturally it meant more coal—a great deal more, as West Virginia began to get fairly into its productive stride.

"In fact," comments Senator Neely, "I believe it is safe to say that either West Virginia or Pennsylvania alone, working its mines at reasonably full present-day capacity, could adequately supply all requirements which they now divide between them."

Moreover, due to various economic causes, it speedily was evident that West Virginia could produce at less cost per ton than Pennsylvania.

Left to themselves, the independent West Virginia mine owners might have availed themselves of their advantage in the matter of production costs to such an extent as to hopelessly outclass Pennsylvania's operators, but railroad interests enter importantly into the coal question (vastly complicating it, by the way) and it did not suit the roads to permit West Virginia to play its superior competitive hand against Pennsylvania to the limit.

Accordingly, by mutual agreement, a rate handicap, to the mines, was placed upon southern coal, and gradually this handicap was increased—and the north's clamor for a yet heavier one still continues, although already it is 40 per cent greater than at the outset.

That changed everything. All thoughts of competition vanished, for the demand enormously exceeded the supply.

Not only was there an intensification of production in every mine which already was in operation; new ones were opened in all directions, inclusive of great numbers of what West Virginians call "snowbird mines"—petty diggings without transportation facilities—no more imposing, in some instances, than a deliver-truck each or perhaps only a horse and wagon.

And they all paid—for the duration of the war. They paid because, as one big operator here explained to me the other day, "there was no limit upon the wartime price of coal except the limit of its producer's cupidity. Buyers were bidding for coal-bidding anything. If a producer could succeed in supplying his needs for less than a certain producer was demanding it made no difference to the latter."

Women Are Irritating They Prove That Men Are Wrong And Then They Smile Women are people who Don't See Why It Can't Be Done. They are very irritating to the men, who can give them at least a hundred unanswerable arguments as to why It Can NOT Be Done.

But the trouble with those arguments is that the women, particularly wives, answer them. As far back as I can remember, in all the things I've read in the speeches I've heard, in the men make, man is the Adventurer. He's the lad who wants to tear loose and wander, wants to hit the high spots and see everything before he dies. And men seem to believe that old hokum. They love to quote Kipling to the effect that: Up to Gehenna and down to the Throne He travels the fastest who travels alone.

They quote it and they sigh manfully and put their reluctant noses down to the grindstone again. And Woman is the stay-at-home. She's the timid Barnacle. She wants to cling fast to the old oaken bucket for the sake of her children; for the sake of all the dusty and moss covered Things As They Are. The man wants to take a chance, but the woman pulls in the reins on him and keeps him on the beaten path.

ter; other would-be buyers were clamoring for coal, no matter what it cost them."

Ever since the bottom dropped out of this "seller's market," a large proportion of the wartime crop of mine operators has been hanging on. Not all of them, of course, but enough to provide at least twice as much soft coal as the country requires.

WHEN LATENT HEAT IS RELEASED FROM WATER VAPOR

The energy from the sun that is used up in tearing apart the molecules of water on the surface of oceans, lakes, streams, land, with-out heating same, is called latent heat. What finally becomes of it? For one thing, latent heat is liberated at night by the condensation of water vapor in the air. Wherever condensation of water vapor is going on, there latent heat is being released and the immediate local temperature is raised in proportion to the amount of latent heat released. Rising air may pool, condense the water vapor within it, forming a cloud and in so doing latent heat is released that starts a convectional (up rushing) air current the beginning of a "low."

Systematic Exercises Aid Reducer

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

In addition to general daily exercises such as walking, swimming, tennis or golf, the person who is determined to lose weight must take daily systematic exercises.

These exercises should be taken in the bedroom, with all clothes off, before retiring. They will take up about ten minutes' time.

Exercise 1. Standing. Arms extended to the sides. Swing arms together in a circle ten times. Breathe ten breaths. Then swing arms toward each other until they cross over to the fullest extent ten times. Breathing exercise. With arms at sides bring them up over the head until they meet. Ten times, slowly.

This exercise affects shoulders and arms.

Exercise 2. Standing erect, arms extended, bend to right side until the right fingers touch outside of knee. Same on left side. Ten times. Standing erect with arms over head, bend until fingers touch the floor. Ten times.

Exercise 3. Lying flat on back. Rise to sitting posture and touch toes with fingers. Ten times. Breathing exercise. Lying on back raise legs until they are straight up from the floor. Lower slowly. Ten times. Lying on back, raise legs and do motions as in pedaling a bicycle.

These exercises will affect the abdomen and waist.

Exercise 4. Standing erect, arms on hips. Bend knees, rising or toes, and squat. Return to original posture. Five times at first, one extra time each night up to ten times. Breathe ten times.

Standing erect, hands on hips. Raise right leg in front of you until heel is on a level with hip. Return to original position. Ten times. Same with left leg.

This exercise will affect the hips and thighs.

Exercise 5. Standing erect, hands on hips. Rise on toes and bend right leg until heel hits buttocks. Reverse and do same on right leg with left leg. Ten times each. This is a standing still running motion.

These exercises will affect calves and ankles.

Chin and neck exercises may be added, by lying on the bed with the head hanging over the side and raising and lowering the head and rolling the head from side to side.

These exercises will consume from 100 to 200 calories, depending on the original weight and the vigor with which they are performed. They are calculated to reduce the entire body systematically.

Try them in connection with the diet proposed day before yesterday and see how much you lose in a week.

Which Wins, Perfect Boy?

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"Dear Virginia Lee: They say love is blind, but I don't quite know what to think about it."

"One of my boy friends has many faults, as have most of us, and I see those faults and know every one of them (at least I think I do). We know each other so well that we don't try to hide our faults from each other."

"Now, on the other hand, I have another boy friend whom I also love dearly. I have known this boy for years and have not found a single fault in him. He is not jealous, he is not the heart-breaking kind. In my estimation he is the most perfect person I have ever met. I wouldn't wish him to be better."

"Do you think he might be successfully hiding some of his bad points and showing only the good points? Do you think the one whose good and bad points I can see would be the better choice, or the one whose bad points—if he has any—are not shown to me? I have chosen the latter but I am sort of doubtful. I could be happy with either one if they are what I think they are."

That is quite a problem, isn't it, Helen? I can tell you one thing, though. Whichever one you choose to marry, there will be times when you will wish you had taken the other.

Of course No. 2 has faults. He couldn't exist without them—not in this imperfect world. He may just be self-controlled, concealing his real feelings of jealousy, etc. And then again, he may have perfect parents who have brought him up so beautifully that his original faults have been canceled. I have always wanted to see a person who was faultlessly trained from his "little infancy," as someone has put it. If he is this kind of person, better grab him quick, Helen. There is probably not his like in all the world.

If you can love boy friend No. 1 with all his faults maybe he would be a good choice. But don't flatter yourself.

UNDECIDED: As you are not sure of winning the second boy, why not be merely friendly to him until he seems more interested in you? In the meantime be good pals with the first one who seems to like you so well.

ANXIOUS: I think all else being even, I would choose the boy friend nearer your own age. Anxious.

EX-MRS. X: I imagine your former unhappy matrimonial experience has much to do with your reluctance to say "yes" to this man whom you like so well. It works on you subconsciously. Don't you think that if you made up your mind to marry him and ignored your feelings you would be happy? It seems too bad to be lonely and unhappy when you could have the companionship of this man who is so fine and who cares so much for you. Make up your mind to say yes and crush out all thoughts of doubt. I feel sure you will not regret it.

Glad Says Insect Bites Mar Beauty

By GLADYS GLAD

Despite the fact that the lovely mosquito is very much in evidence in the good old summer time, this insect and its activities are generally ignored completely by beauticians. And I've often wondered why. For, as a means of destroying a shapely pair of legs, of disfiguring a soft, smooth pair of arms, of marring an otherwise flawless skin, this buzzing, biting insect cannot be beaten.

Every time that Miss Mosquito (it is the female of the species who does most of the biting) nibbles at a human, she helps herself to a bit of blood. And at the same time she injects a small quantity of a fluid that is extremely irritating. The bitten spot becomes swollen, inflamed and itchy. Also the bitten individual usually scratches and scratches the inflamed area until, perhaps, she draws blood. Then there is the danger of infection. And often permanent scars are left to mar the skin by mosquito bites that have not been properly treated.

The thing to do, of course, is to keep those blood-thirsty insects from feasting on your tender anatomies. And scientists have discovered that there are several things that seem to discourage Miss Mosquito, and make her lose her appetite entirely. Among them are the odors of peppermint, eucalyptus, paraffin and citronella. The thing to do is to anoint the exposed portions of the body with one of these essences before going out of doors.

In the second place, our scientists would have us believe that Miss Mosquito is affected by colors. She has, it seems, a positive hatred for humans who dress in white or bright yellow. Other hues do not bother her biting activities very much. But she must be mighty hungry before she'll approach a white or yellow clad individual. These colors, then, will also bring about a certain immunity.

Editor's Note: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlet on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for each to cover cost of printing and handling. For her articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails" and "Care of the Feet and Legs," 2 cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions or beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

The All-Stars and Krippendorf are co-holders of first place in the American League at present and thereby hangs a tale.

It would seem, on the face of it, almost impossible for the All-Stars to have attained their present lofty position when it is considered they have not been able to defeat Krippendorf a single time this season.

The 1930 league champions and the All-Stars have met four times on the diamond, with the league schedule two-thirds completed and Krippendorf has won each time. The scores have been 11 to 0, 6 to 5, 9 to 8 and 5 to 7, the last three Krippendorf victories being by margins of one run each time. It does seem strange that two local softball teams can be tied for first place when one has beaten the other four times without once losing.

The explanation, however, is simple. The American League teams this season have been erratic. Krippendorf, while able to hang up a victory over the All-Stars every time out, has not been able to dominate the other two teams in the loop, having lost three out of four games to Central High and split even in four contests with St. Brigid.

The All-Stars, despite the fact they fold up against the defending champions, have looked like world-beaters against the other two rivals, having beaten St. Brigid four straight times and Central High, three out of four games.

The downtown softball team, which has engaged in only one non-league contest since it was organized five years ago, has accepted an invitation to meet the Famous Autos on the Paintersville diamond either Wednesday or Friday night, July 29 or July 31. The knowledge that the proposed game will be followed by a lawn fete influenced the team to depart from its rule of not playing games that are not regular league contests. The bribery worked and the Wednesday date will probably be accepted because if the game would be arranged for Friday, some of the players complain they would miss out on those delicious chicken sandwiches that form the piece de resistance of the lawn fetes given at Paintersville.

Those grand old men of golfdom will have their day at Springfield Country Club July 16 when the annual senior tournament of the Central Ohio District Golf Association will be played. Men 50 years of age or more are eligible to compete. A club handicap is taken as the basis of the scoring. More than fifty entries are expected. The prize for the winner is the Judge D. W. Jones Cup. Judge Jones, of Marietta, is himself a senior and will play. In the evening the contestants will have their annual dinner at 6:15 at the Springfield Country Club.

LANGS WHITEWASH WOOD'S BARBERS IN GAME FRIDAY NIGHT

Losers Obtain But Two Hits; Victors Show 12-0 Score

The Lang Chevrolets, down temporarily but by no means out, regained a portion of lost ground in the National League softball race by scoring a 12 to 0 shutout triumph over Wood's Barbers at Cox Field Friday night.

Supported by fast fielding on defense and vicious batting on offense, Harry Williams pitched the 1930 city champs to a victory so easily achieved it was almost a shame to take the money, or what, ever it is they take at league games.

Harry, miser-like, was stingy with hits. He allowed only two bingles and only three players affiliated with Wood's team obtained a speaking acquaintance with first base. Two batters reached first on singles and a third on an error.

Mendenhall led off with a single in the fourth but was forced at second and the next two batters were easy. In the sixth Mendy again got on base, this time on an error by Ruse, the only Lang mis-play of the contest, but there were two down at the time and the next batter was retired on a fly. Weaver singled in the eighth with one out, after which Holten hit into a fast double play.

Hitting safely in every inning but the fourth, the Chevrolets grouped six hits to score five runs in the second stanza. They added another in the third and also in the fifth, three in the eighth and two in the ninth.

All told, the Chevrolets gathered sixteen safeties off Hurley, pitcher for the Barbers, Lee Ruse showing the way with four blows, one a double. Fuller contributed three hits. Errors also played a part in the scoring. The losing team was handicapped by the fact it had only nine players, lacking a short fielder. Every Lang player personally scored at least one run and all of them hit safely except Lou McCoy.

Through its triumph, the Lang team is now only half a game removed from the first-place Downtown team. Lineups:

FILE COURT ACTION TO FORCE REMOVAL OF FENCE IN ALLEY

A mandatory injunction compelling the defendants to remove a fence she claims they erected across a public alley off E. Main St. is sought in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Ella Croker against Arthur Jefferson and Lillie Jefferson.

The plaintiff sets forth she owns a lot extending from E. Main St. southward to an alley in the rear of her property which runs east and west, parallel to Main St.

The alley, she asserts, has been open to public use for twenty-one years, enabling abutting property owners to haul coal and other materials to their respective properties.

The claim is made that the defendants, owners of a lot a short distance east of that of the plaintiff, about five years ago fenced in as part of their lot, virtually all of the alley to the rear of their premises, leaving only sufficient room for pedestrians to walk.

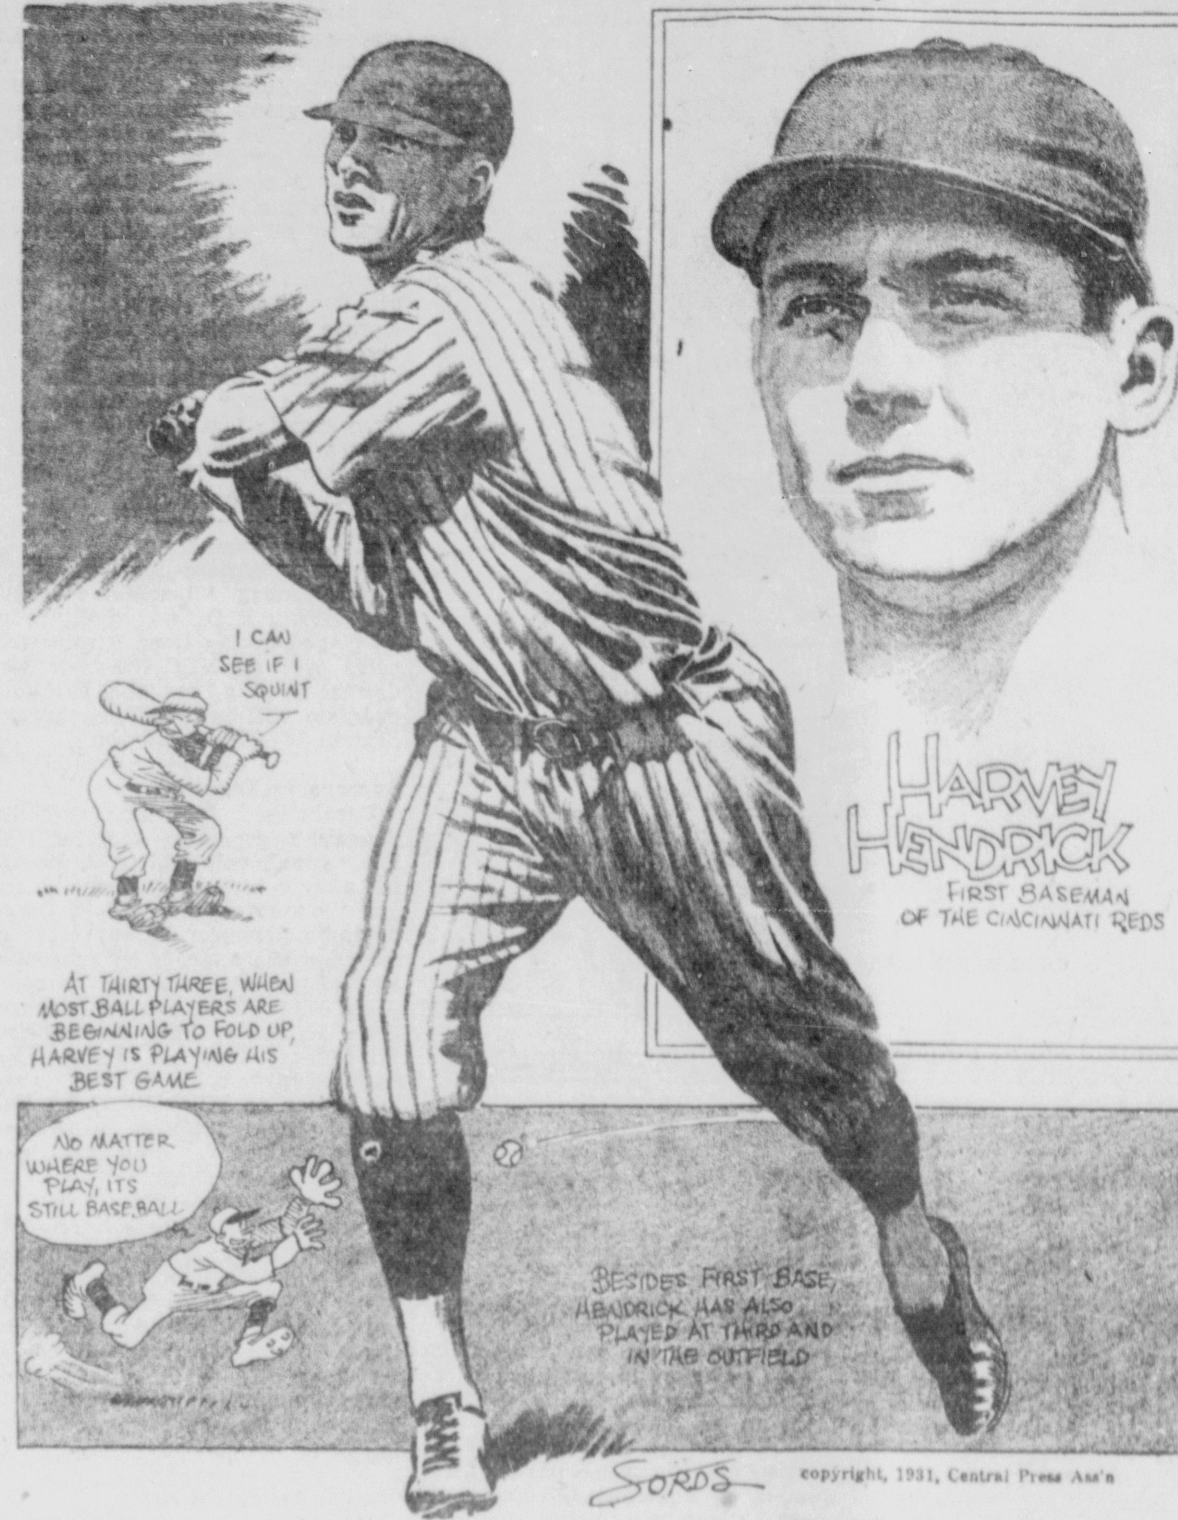

The plaintiff complains that she and other lot owners now have no access to the rear of their properties because the fence obstructs the passageway and prevents any sort of vehicle from passing through the alley.

Removal of the fence and restoration of the alley to the use of the public is asked in the petition. Marshall and Marshall are the plaintiffs' attorneys.

DAYTON TEAM WILL PLAY HERE SUNDAY

Either Haines or Harlin or Schwab, the last named pitcher a former local ball player, will be on the mound for the Thompson Printing Co. when the strong Dayton baseball nine, as yet undefeated this season, encounters the Xenia Merchants Sunday afternoon on the Washington Park diamond.

BOB KEPLER WINS OHIO AMATEUR TITLE FROM FELLOW DAYTONIAN

WYANDOT GOLF CLUB, Columbus, O., July 11.—The crown symbolizing Ohio's amateur golf championship today rested upon the youthful brow of Bob Kepler, a Dayton college boy.

Kepler, an Ohio State University student, clinched the championship late yesterday afternoon with a triumph over Scotty Reston, another Dayton collegian, four up and three to play.

Besides being the first Daytonian ever to rule the Ohio Simon-Peters, Kepler also is the first public links golfer to climb to that lofty niche.

The all-day finale aroused partisan feeling among the galleries, only because Kepler is an Ohio Stater and Reston is from the University of Illinois.

Although his golf was not sensational, the victor did give the crowd something to talk about in the manner in which he overtook Reston, who held a two-up advantage at the end of the first nine holes of their 36-hole struggle.

Not until the sixteenth hole did Kepler take the lead. Two birdies in a row on the second nine put him even. He won the sixteenth when Reston took four strokes to get on the green.

Kepler was more a champion on that round than at any other time during the day. His medal score on the second nine was 33, three under par.

Reston cut Kepler's lead to one hole by the time they reached the ninth on the afternoon round. This called for another spur by Kepler. After taking the tenth, Kepler captured the eleventh by blasting straight down the fairway while Reston shot into a gully.

A birdie four on the fifteenth for Kepler ended the match. Reston, still wild, was able to get a par five.

Both played better golf in the morning than in the afternoon. Kepler had a 33-33-71 to Reston's 36-37-73. Reston's constant wildness cost him several holes.

Winners in minor flights yesterday were: consolation—Joe Southwaite, of Columbus, one up over Herb Bash of Columbus in thirty-seven holes; Eddie Liebenthal of Cleveland, two up over Bob Kelly of Columbus; F. J. Grant of Zanesville, one up over Steve Stout of Cincinnati; Ralph Gordes of Cincinnati, three up over W. Taylor of Columbus, and Billy Powers of Columbus, one up over W. H. Margraf of Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Filson have been entertaining Mr. Filson's mother, his sister and two children of Lewisburg, Pa., and his sister from Columbus, O., for the past week. They left for their homes Thursday morning.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 11.—There was little indication of improvement in the stock market today. The leading stocks were carried steadily downward by a selling wave which was encouraged by the continued unsettlement in the foreign markets, particularly the new complications in Germany's credit program. Further price-cutting in gasoline, crude oil and copper did not help the situation from the bullish standpoint, and the professionals were generally on the bear side of the market. Foreign bonds and American commodities were also inclined to the lower levels.

Mail Box Controversy

W. Irving Walker, above, former member of the Maryland house of delegates, known as the father of rural free delivery mail service in Maryland, is protesting to the postoffice department against a recent ruling which would remove all rural mail boxes from the left to the right side of the road. He says enforcement of the order would mean a death trap to women and children who would be forced to cross the road to get their mail. But the post-office department says heavy motor traffic makes it dangerous for mail carriers to pull up on the left side of the road.

Mr. Charles Mesley of Quincy, Ill., and Mrs. Rose Johnson, of Peoria, Ill., who were called here by the death of their mother, Mrs. Susan Boase, left for their respective homes Tuesday evening.

IN FOOTSTEPS OF TUNNEY

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—Max Adelbert Baer, California heavyweight, and his new "manager," Mrs. Dorothy Wells De Garcon Baer, will make a tour of European capitals and cathedrals as the first step in Maxie's campaign for the heavyweight boxing crown.

The announcement came today from the couple, honeymooning in an Oakland hotel.

Following their return from Europe, Max, under the direction and encouragement of his new manager, will start his campaign for the title.

Later, "after he wins the crown," the Baers will raise a family, according to Mrs. Baer's program.

The Theater

Movies of the Schmeling-Stribling fight, that charming Marion Davies in "It's a Wise Child," and John Halliday in "Captain Applejack" seem, to this reviewer, to be the cream of offerings at Xenia theaters during the coming week.

The fight pictures are at the Orphium Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and include five sound reels of the July 3 Cleveland battle in which the German retained his title against the Georgia challenger. They show fifteen rounds of battling and will be exhibited here as an added feature instead of a separate performance.

"Captain Applejack," a Warner Brothers interpretation of an original play by Walter Hackett which took Broadway by storm several seasons ago is the feature attraction on the same dates. It may Nancy Carroll and Phillips Holmes in "Stolen Heaven" should attract customers to the Bijou Sunday and Monday, especially the numerous Carroll fans. Paramount made the film from a Dana Burnett story and it is high drama. Louis Calhern and others are in the cast.

Richard Arlan, in "Gun Smoke," a Paramount Western with a first-class plot, is the Bijou attraction Thursday, there being no booking yet for Wednesday. "Gun Smoke" is first class Western hokum, in which big city gunmen are introduced. Its cast includes Mary Brian, William Boyd, Eugene Pallette, Charles Winninger, Louise Fazenda, Brooks Benedict, James Durkin, William V. Mong and others.

The Little Theater, at Yellow Springs, is right up with the wire this week, offering "Daddy Long Legs," Janet Gaynor's latest, for Saturday and Sunday screening. The film, of course is from the stage version which, of course, was from the novel by Jean Webster. The film is smartly done and is well cast, the players including, besides the principals, Una Merkel, John Arledge, Calude Gillingwater Sr., Kathryn Williams, Louise Closser Hale, and others.

The Davies opus is a film version of Laurence E. Johnson's stage hit at the Belasco Theater in New York in 1929 and your correspondent doesn't know anyone better suited to the lead than the blonde comedienne who made you all laugh so hard in "The Bachelor Father." Robert Leonard, who directed it, also directed this, her latest and Metro filled the cast with notables such as Sidney Blackmer, James Gleason, Polly Moran, Lester Vail, Marie Prevost, Clara Blandick, Robert McWade, Johnny Arthur, Hilda Vaughn, Ben Alexander and Emily Fitzroy. Such a cast. The picture will be screened at the Bijou Friday and Saturday.

The other picture at the Orphium is a Tiffany Western, "The Utah Kid," featuring Ray Lease with Dorothy Sebastian playing opposite in what, so far as your correspondent knows, may be her first west-and convinced himself that he had abandoned the idea.

SHOOTS SELF WHILE MOTHER, UNABLE TO STOP ACT, LOOKS ON

Diehl had been working at a meat store in Yellow Springs, operated by his brother, Philip, while the owner and his family were away on a short motor trip, and at 12 o'clock noon Friday he left the shop and went to the Pastry Shop on Xenia Ave., operated by his wife and Mrs. D. A. Brewer. There he ate his lunch and then went home.

Before reaching home he stopped for a few minutes in the yard to talk with his mother, and confided to her that he was worried and still felt a desire to "end it all." His mother again believed she had persuaded him to give up this notion and while she entered her house, the son went inside his own home alone.

A few moments later the mother heard a revolver report. "Could that be Jake?" cried Mrs. Diehl, turning to her daughter, Marguerite. Suspecting the origin of the shot, the mother rushed to her son's home. Unable to open the screen door, fastened on the inside, the mother, after seeing her son fire the second shot, entered the dwelling by the front entrance. The second bullet was believed to have passed through the heart.

Diehl was in the army during the World War, although he did not serve overseas. He formerly was employed by his brother-in-law, Charles O'Brien, in the latter's meat market in Jamestown, but had not worked there for several months. He suffered from eye trouble and was said to have worried constantly over his condition.

Diehl had always lived in Yellow Springs and his family is well known in that locality. He is survived by his widow, Inez, two daughters, Mary Louise, 7, and Imogene, 10, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Diehl, Sr.; two brothers, Phillip Diehl, Yellow Springs, and Clarence, living in Illinois; and three sisters, Mrs. Lee Fawley, Yellow Springs; Mrs. Charles O'Brien, Jamestown, and Mrs. Marguerite Wead, living with her parents.

Funeral services will be conducted at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Diehl, Sr., at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon with interment in the Yellow Springs Cemetery.

what the French conditions to a big loan were, they waited for the arrival of Dr. Luther from Paris for details.

PARIS, July 11. — Dr. Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, left Paris by airplane for Berlin today, carrying with him the political demands, fulfillment of which France has made conditional to a loan to Germany at this time. The Reichsbank president is due in Berlin about 3:30 p. m. and it was expected here that he would lay the French demands immediately before the German cabinet.

Unless Germany grants political concessions, that country will receive no aid from France in raising a $260,000,000 loan to stave off bankruptcy and possible revolution. That was the situation in Paris as Dr. Luther left for Berlin. Dr. Luther spent yesterday conferring with French government officials and financiers.

France's terms for participating in the huge international loan sought by Germany were understood to be as follows:

1. Abandonment of the Anschluss, or Austro-German customs union.
2. Suspension of the German naval programme.
3. Assurance that Germany will not support any move destined to bring about a reduction in French armaments considered necessary to French security.

Rather than grant such terms, it was reported in Paris today that Chancellor Bruening would prefer to resign, a step that would certainly bring the German crisis to a head, entailing far-reaching consequences from which even France could not escape.

Government officials and newspaper editors are plainly worried over developments, but at the same time they wish to lose no opportunity to bolster France's position on the continent at the expense of Germany.

Aside from the danger to France of either Communism or Fascism in Germany, it was recognized here that the downfall of the German financial structure would carry with it the ruin of other central powers in which France is heavily interested.

YES, INDEED, MRS. RUDY HAS IT!

So Says Girl Writer Who Calls On Crooner And Bride (Who'll Never Be Jealous) And Learns Her Likes And Dislikes

By ETHELDA BEDFORD

Author of "Dear Diary," Central Press Feature

NEW YORK, July 11.—It took a dreamy-eyed, tropic-looking, 23-year-old brunette from "way out west" to play the wedding march on Rudy Valle's heart strings. Although Rudy has crooned his way into the feminine hearts of America, that was not how he won his bride, Fay Webb Valle, daughter of the police chief of Santa Monica, Cal. It was a wooing of man and girl, and it took Rudy three years to win this audience of one—until she applauded: "Yes, Rudy."

Rudy and his pretty wife now are cooling a duet—it should be entitled, "Honey-moonlight Saving Time"—in their fourteen-room apartment overlooking Central Park. It really is a small palace.

Malden America is sending them wires—the last count had it well over 10,000—and the phone rings continuously.

Men Like Rudy's Choice
But, girls, she has IT.... tall, slim, and such eyes! Line, color, dash! Even the men (their applause always has lagged) who've glimpsed Mrs. Valle say: "As a crooner Rudy's a good picker."

There she was lounging Lenore Ulric fashion—she's that sleek, siren type—dark, dreamy, slow-eyed, real lingers eyes. You know. Somehow the glances she gives don't seem to be studied. It's just that southern California way, a touch from the manana land.

Men dream of them like that, even if gentlemen do prefer blondes.

"I told Rudy I wanted a ring just like Norma Shearer's—and, look!" She held out her coral-nailed hand (she's found that special tint of polish we're always trying to find) and proffered a certain finger on which glittered a pear-shaped diamond. "Four karats—and cost $7,500!"

"How did you do it?" she was asked.

Met Three Years Ago
"We just met, when he was in Hollywood three years ago—and I didn't know he was so famous. I just thought of him as an ordinary fellow—and I still think of him that way. I love him for that I mean, not because he's famous."

"Certainly, I love the way he croons!" she cast her smoky-blue eyes proudly upon the curly-haired songster who has made hearts flutter echoing sentiment from Maine to California.

"Are you going to be a wife—or a movie star, now that you're married?"

"I can cook and sew and I adore to keep house. I love this place, the way Rudy has it furnished for me. With piano, I play, too. Phonograph, and lots of the books I like. I think keeping house will be more fun than being in the movies."

To Europe—Later
She's not at all disappointed because Rudy says they'll have to wait two years for a honeymoon—"my work, you know."

"Then we're going to Europe!" she enthused. "When Rudy finishes his contracts. And until then we'll have two evenings each week to—gather—and Sundays!"

"Do you think you'll get jealous of his work?"

"I'm NOT going to be jealous," she said, determination sparkling from her eyes. "There is no use being jealous of his admirers. Besides, we have been engaged two years and I was away most of the time. If I could trust him all that time I can trust him now."

What was she wearing? Something lux and clinging and black and white, with earrings and a gorgeous wave. And lots of mascara and just enough lipstick.

"Rudy says I am the theatrical type, but I really am a home girl. I love a house and all the things girls with careers aren't supposed to like...."

And she's so glad all you people are sending her all those wires and flowers... and agreeing with her that she had married the grandest man in the world.

Not since Colonel Charles Lindbergh said "I do" to Anne Morrow, have we girls had our hearts feel so strange.... as they do now that this lovely Fay has gone and married Rudy!

Farm Notes

PLOW EARLY FOR WHEAT

Much of the wheat in Ohio follows late. Early plowing of oats stubble land may be expected to increase the wheat crop several bushels per acre over plowing just before wheat seeding time, as shown by a seven year's test at Wooster by L. E. Thatcher, associate agronomist at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station. In this test, plowing about the 15th of August gave an increase of more than four bushels of wheat per acre over plowing about a month later, or a week or two before seeding time. When the plowing was done about September 1, the increase was only about one bushel more than when done two weeks later.

Certain plots of land were also disked twice over early in August. This diskings was of no benefit, however, on land that was plowed about the first of September. It did increase the yield of wheat one and one-third bushels on land that was not plowed until about September 15. This increase scarcely paid for the diskings.

On other plots, the seedbed was prepared by disking alone, early in August, early in September, and a week or two before seeding time, going over the land two or three times on each date. A good seedbed was prepared, but the yield of wheat was less than on any of the plowed plots, being six bushels less than the best method (i. e., plowing early in August).

In general, plowing should be followed at once by disking once over in order to settle the furrow slices and to fill the joints between them. This will prevent the soil from drying too much below the surface. If the soil plows up dry and cloddy, a cultipacker or heavy roller may also be used to advantage. The surface should be left somewhat rough so that rainfall may be easily absorbed without runoff. If too fine, the surface is likely to become puddled by heavy rains. The has a public interest. It has but one purpose, and that is to depress prices. It tends to destroy returning public confidence. The intent is to take a profit from the losses of other people. Even though the effect may be temporary it deprives many farmers of their rightful income.

"If these gentlemen have that sense of patriotism, which outruns immediate profit, and a desire to see the country recover, they will close up these transactions, and desist from their manipulations. The confidence imposed upon me by law as a public official does not permit me to expose their names to the public. If I could, I would gladly do so."

Today, at the Rapidan, there was discussion of ways and means of curbing the speculation.

It was significant that the President took along as one of his guests Vice President Curtis, who has been urging the farm board for weeks to pledge itself to withhold from the market some 275,000,000 bushels of wheat which it has in storage.

Curtis and other leaders from the grain states contend that this huge surplus hangs over the wheat market like the proverbial sword of Damocles and prevents any appreciable recovery of prices because traders are uncertain when the farm board may decide to dispose of it in the open market.

The farm board, which bought the wheat at prices ranging all the way up to $1.25 a bushel, or more than twice the present price, has been unwilling to make a definite promise to hold the bag on this wheat. The best that Curtis and others have been able to do is to extract a pledge that the board will not sell more than 5,000,000 bushels in any one month. This has not satisfied them. Several times they have carried their appeals directly to Mr. Hoover, but he has been cautious about interfering in the board's functions.

Those who do not agree with President Hoover that short selling and speculation has been entirely responsible for the situation, pointed out today that natural causes have also contributed to the low prices.

For example, yesterday the department of agriculture issued a long-awaited crop estimate. It was to the effect that the United States is going to have a bumper wheat crop this year, producing an even greater crop than last year—and this at a time when there are enormous surpluses from previous crops still to be absorbed. The estimate for this year was $69,000,000 bushels, as against $69,000,000 last year, and a five-year average of $22,000,000.

What the administration can do is problematical. It is considered certain, however, that the President's statement will give impetus to the always current efforts in congress to enact a law either prohibiting outright or drastically curtailing the business of selling futures.

Meanwhile, it was the administration's hope today that the President's statement would have a salutary effect upon speculation in the wheat pits of the country.
